Pulaski County High School incites safety by implementing Healthy Relationships Week

RADFORD, Va. – Jan. 7, 2019 – Community members in Pulaski County can positively impact the lives of Pulaski teens by working together to create a community free of sexual and domestic violence during Healthy Relationships Weeks for Pulaski County High School, from Jan. 14 – 18.

This is the first year the Women's Resource Center of the New River Valley (WRC) is implementing a Healthy Relationships Week at Pulaski County High School. By working together with representatives from the WRC, Pulaski County High School, and the Pulaski Coordinating Council, the team has planned a week of activities to promote building relationships grounded in respect, equality, honesty, communication, and trust.

"We are thankful for a community that comes together to incite safety," said Pat Brown, Executive Director. "Because of the compassionate, dedicated people of Pulaski, the WRC has the ability to make a difference in the lives and futures of many teens."

The Women's Resource Center (WRC) is a non-profit human service agency, serving Pulaski County, Floyd County, Montgomery County, Giles County, and the City of Radford. The WRC continues to provide free programs and services to adult and child victims of sexual and domestic violence. For over forty years, the WRC has been providing hope and help to those who need it, making it the oldest domestic violence center in Virginia.

For more information on Healthy Relationships Week, contact Linda Johnson at 540.639.9592 or Peaceline@wrvnr.org. People can also visit the Women's Resource Center website at wrcnrv.org.
